Diabetes Prevalence Model

The diabetes prevalence model provides estimates of total (diagnosed and undiagnosed) diabetes prevalence for people aged 16 years and older in England. The model was developed using data from the latest 3 years of Health Surveys for England (HSE), 2011, 2012 and 2013. The estimates take into account the age, sex, and ethnic group distribution, as well as deprivation of the area. Estimates are provided for both the resident and registered population. Diabetes prevalence estimates have been produced by local authority, CCG and for England.

Soon to be published:

CVD Risk Factors Profiles

These will be available for each local authority. These profiles bring together a wide range of data on the risk factors for cardiovascular disease (CVD) for each local authority in England. They are for commissioners and health professionals to use when assessing the impact of CVD on their local population, opportunities for improvement and making decisions about services and emerging issues.

Ofsted regime for CCGs

NHS England has set out the framework of the new assessment regime for CCGs in 2016-17. CCGs will be assessed within six clinical priorities: cancer, dementia, diabetes, mental health, learning disabilities, maternity care and will receive a rating of outstanding, good, requires improvement or inadequate for each. Assessment will be overseen by independent panels chaired by: Mind – mental health, Alzheimer's Society – dementia, Cancer Research UK – cancer, Diabetes UK – diabetes, the National Maternity review chair – maternity, and the NHS Confederation chief executive and NHS England learning disability advisor – learning disabilities. The framework will also include 29 performance indicators across four domains: better health, better care, sustainability and leadership. Initial assessment of performance will be available online from June 2016, with full assessments, including information from STPs, by June 2017. Once in place, a risk-based inspection regime will be implemented, with high performing CCGs inspected every five years. Access framework here

As cities across the globe continue to grow, more people are growing old in housing, streets, communities that often are failing to respond appropriately to ageing populations with specific policies.
